Pomegranates

Poems by Erica Jolly

with illustrations by Maureen Prichard

Erica Jolly began writing poems in 1966, but only began to publish them in 1993. Since then a number of her poems have been published in newspapers and journals, including Friendly Street collections. She has a keen sense of social justice, and many of her poems address contemporary social concerns, such as economic and political equity, women's issues and Indigenous rights. She is not afraid to tackle our leaders when they fail in their duties to the community.

Erica was a teacher in South Australian secondary schools until her retirement, and has published two books on the history of education. This is her first collection of poetry.

Pomegranates presents 84 poems and six illustrations by Maureen Prichard.

ISBN 0 9579960 4 7 Paperback, 114 pages, with line illustrations RRP $19.95

Cells with many stories wait for bulging smooth red skin to split and spill those tales.
